LOCAL MATTERS.

A HEAVY ROBBERY.—ARREST OF THE PARTY CHARGED WITH IT.—In early morning Court Saturday morning James S. Ryan was charged with stealing $600 from Roland Mills, and John McNeil with harboring and concealing James S. Ryan, knowing that he was charged with a felony.

The cases were continued. Ryan was committed to jail and McNeil bailed for his appearance.
The complaint in this case arrived in the city Wednesday evening from Washington, and drew $600 from the State Bank on a check. During the day he met Ryan, and they drank together. The next day Ryan assisted him in packing his effects. Friday when Mills arose he had lost the key to his satchel. He secured the services of a locksmith, had the satchel opened, and found his pocket-book with the money gone. He placed the matter in the hands of Detective Knox, who soon discovered evidence enough to warrant his arrest. Officers Martin and Baker went with him to McNeil's place of business to execute the warrant. On reaching McNeil's bar-room they were told that Ryan had left there some time since.

The officers kept a watch until 3 o'clock on Saturday morning, when McNeil closed up and started up the street. He was told by the officers that Ryan was in the house, which he denied, and became quite indignant. Sergeant Whitlock was sent for, and on making an examination through a window in the rear of the house they saw Ryan on a bed. He was arrested, and a roll of money found where he had thrown it behind the bed. Both parties were then arrested.

AN EXCURSION TO RICHMOND'S NEW SUMMER RESORT—ITS SPACIOUS HOTEL AND THE VIEWS THERE—THE BON AIR LAND AND IMPROVEMENT COMPANY—HOMEWARD BOUND.

All large cities have adjacent to them, on the line of the railway, summer resorts to which the great masses of the people may run and take a breath of country air at moderate expense and return without interruption from their business. And that Richmond should have been until recently an exception to the above assertion is rather a matter of surprise when we reflect upon the pleasures and benefits which are to be derived from such institutions; and Richmond is certainly a sufficiently large city (the recent census to the contrary notwithstanding) to have room for one adjacent public resort to which her citizens generally might from time to time find change of scene and momentary immunity from the heat which radiates from brick and mortar piled up on all sides, even after Old Sol has turned a cold shoulder to us to bestow his caloric favors upon other regions.

That the gentlemen who recently established "Bon Air," on the Richmond and Danville railroad, wisely estimated the public want in this regard is clearly proved by two significant facts, which have fallen within the observation of this writer. The last regular FRIDAY-AFTERNOON-EXCURSION train carried, with "Bon Air" as its objective point, over four hundred passengers, numbering among them many of Richmond's best people. Then, too, the large number of regular guests who have until recently filled the Bon Air Hotel to its utmost capacity are evidences of success which speak louder than words. The excursion train which leaves for the future Richmond and Saratoga consisted of two regular passenger-coaches and five flat-cars justly fitted up with benches and canvas covering for these summer excursions. Long before the time of starting crowds of excursionists began to pour in to the Danville depot. The fact that this is the hottest place in creation, when taken with the equally evident fact that each and every member of that great throng had constituted himself or herself a committee of one to secure the best seat on the train, aroused serious misgivings lest this cargo of quasi excursionists would find the train a hotbed of discontent. The iron works which glared forth near by, or we would all be reduced to spontaneous combustion. Once seated, however, and the cars moving easily over the noble jeans, all such fears were allayed, as "the breeze came over the waters" and the young people began their merry and happy chat.

"Mid all the complacency which settled down upon the excursionists as they whirled along by "Granite" and the devious way above, to none had it come with such a munificent hand as to the lawyer and his wife. run with refreshing breezes in what had been a hitherto very hot day could make it, and the company were gay and happy. The young men were sorely tempted to kiss the young ladies as they passed through the dark bridges. Certain it was the girls screamed, and there were sounds like those of ordinary demonstrations, but of course they were only making pretense. "What! Never?"

Yes, we shall all go to Bon Air again.

INVESTIGATION AT THE POST-OFFICE.—Special-Agent Henderson has been in the city several days investigating the affairs of the Post-Office Department here. On Saturday night it was rumored that the accounts were short in excess of four thousand dollars, and the Washington office was telegraphed for instructions. It is stated that the reply was to the effect that until Monday be allowed in which to make the delinquency good.

The trouble, it is said, grows out of overdrawn salaries and shortage of about nine hundred dollars in the stamp department. Special-Agent Henderson is represented as having stated that the money must be made good or it would amount to a defalcation. This it was agreed should be done to-day.

With reference to the shortage in the stamp department, our information is to the effect that in order to ascertain the exact amount of the shortage it was necessary to go over all the stamps, but that no suspicious attaches to the stamp clerk.

The officers who were investigating the matter on Saturday could not be found at night, and therefore more definite information was not obtained. The deficiency is limited, however, to between three and four thousand dollars.

The Free Bridge.

Editors Dispatch: "Can nothing be done to put the Free bridge across the river in a passable condition? Thousands of dollars were spent to construct this improvement in the hope that it would afford a free, safe, and permanent means of communication between Richmond and Manchester. But now, owing to its very bad condition, it is worse than useless, except for foot passengers. Neither horses, mules, or cattle can cross it without imminent danger of getting their legs broken. Accidents may be daily expected unless the bridge is speedily closed or repaired, for which the cities may be held pecuniarily responsible.

We appeal to the proper officials to find some solution of the difficulty which prevents the appropriation of the money necessary to repair this important but now dangerous thoroughfare.

Tax-Payers.

Editors of the Dispatch: Will you be good enough to state, respecting the seizure of the cargo of the "Zuleita Kenyon," mentioned in the State of this afternoon, that the iron in question was not imported by the Tredegar Company?

The importers—a leading house in New York—are incapable of any intentional violation of the revenue laws, and the whole difficulty will doubtless turn out to have been caused by the mistake of some foreign shipper, or of the customs officials in New York. Very respectfully,

JOS. R. ANDERSON,
President Tredegar Company,
Richmond, July 17, 1880.
